"HERE LIES THE NAZI": CUNNING PROPAGANDA PUT OUT BY GERMANS FOR HOME

"THE UNUSUAL PROPAGANDA put out by the Nazis to animate certain instincts among the German people formed the subject of an interesting talk in London on Tuesday night by Col. D. H. Christie, whose addresses on the methods which the Germans adopt to boost their war aims have been receiving much attention at home.

CONSUMPTION

"Today you will like to hear something about the propaganda the German broadcast stations are putting out to their own people in their own language," said Col. Christie. "Naturally, with so many states now at war, these broadcasts tend to divert attention from the failure of the promised attack on Britain.

ITALIANS' BLOW PROGRESS

LONDON. Oct. 30 (Reuter)—The slow progress of the Italian advance against Greece has aroused suspicion in some quarters that one of Italy's purposes may have been to test the Japanese reactions to her obligations under the Tripartite Pact, says Reuter's" Diplomatic correspondent

"OH, JOHNNY, HOW YOU CAN LOVE" AT THE MAJESTIC

Music, laughter, and a gay romantic story are the pleasing elements found in Universal's "Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love." which opens today at the Majestic Theatre.

features Tom Brown and Peggy

Brown is the young salesman who comes to the rescue of the girl portrayed by Miss Moran, a promising screen newcomer. Allen Jenkins is the not-so-tough gangster, and Donald Meek is the timid manager of an auto-court whose hobby, invention, eventually brings disaster to the crooks. Juanita Quigley provides laughs as the youngster whose supply of fireworks helps rout the gangsters Important, too, is the novel presentation of the song hit; "Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love," sung radio songstress. Especially written for the picture were the tuneful melodies. "Swing, Chariot, Swing," and "Maybe You Like What I Like, both composed by Frank Skinner and Paul Gerard Smith.

IMPORTANCE OF ANTE-NATAL CARE STRESSED

INAUGURATION OF NURSES ASSCN.

"I would like to ask members o this Association to carefully study the subject of ante-natal care asin my humble opinion, one of the reasons for the large infant mortality figure in Hongkong is the tragic ignorance of this subject among the poorer classes here.

"I would ask you to assist those pour mothers by telling them exactly what to do, and what to eat, after child-birth. By doing so you would be doing a great humane service." said MR. HO KOM-TONG, O.B.E., at the inauguration tea party of the Hongkong Trained Nurses and Midwives Association at the Gloucester Hotel yesterday.

Miss Kong Ching-po presided, and among the large number members and friends present were Hon. Mr M. K. Lo, Prof. Gordon King, Dr. D. J. Valentine and Mrs. Valentine, Mrs. A. M. Peters, Miss S. F. Sutton, Hon. Mr. W. N Thomas Tam, Dr. G. H. Thomas. Mrs A Hughes, Mr. George She and Miss Noreen Lum.

AIMS OF ASSOCIATION

Outlining the aims of the Association, the Cha'rman said that the primary object is to gather together, under one central body, all these trained nurses and midwives who have been, and are, graduating every year from the seven leading hospitals in Hongkong.

The Charman expressed the hope that the members would cooperate "with each other and the Government medical services, and so make towards better health in Hongkong.

Miss Kong concluded by thanking all those who assisted in the formation of the Association. DR. D. J. VALENTINE

Dr. Valentine said that during his career in Hongkong he had al. ways been associated with the Government hospitals and was, therefore, in constant touch with the nur es and midwives of Hongkong. It was natural, he said, that when the number of these two professions grew to 500 and 800, respectively, that they should get together and form an Association.

He hoped that every nurse and midwife, specially those in Government service, would join the Asso-

Australia's security and her power to assist Britain with the large numbers of airmen necessary to establish the empire's air supremacy have been increased by one year's phenomenal expansion of the R.A.A.F. sto a point which, early in the war, might have appeared unattainable, Progress imade by the Empire Air Training Scheme is one of the outstanding successes achieved in the general expansion. Within a few months the pilots, air observers and wireless air "gunners who will be Australia's representatives in the Empire force, which is being raised to gain and held unchallengeable mastery of the air, will be leaving Australian training schools.

18.993 MEN

R.A.A.F. enlistments are governed by the most stringent conditions. The high standard of physical and educational qualifications demanded are designed to thought, initiative and the capacity to withstand the strains of modern warfare. The 31.787 recruits accepted up to the middle of August are representative of the finest type of young Australians. The demands of the expanded Air Force would have taxed the resources of any highly industrialised nation.

Australia was faced with the necessity of meeting these heavy demands, and, at the same time, expanding her industries to provide munitions and other war sup-

Realising that industry would be unable to supply technicians in the required numbers the R.A.A.F. set up its own training organisation. This work has been done so successfully that skilled fitters are being produced after four to nine months' intensive training under service conditions. They have proved themselves fully capable of doing the work demanded of them in the squadrons and training units. Behind the men in service and in training a substantial reserve of 6,400 recruits has been built up. These men will be drafted to the new training schools as they open, and will fill vacancies as they occur in existing schools. ## St. Dunstan's Twenty-fifth Annual Report

"I confess to the most poignant heartbreak in the presence of these boys and more particularly when they show such a zest for life and an interest in their surroundings and outlook," says Sir Ian Fraser, M.P., a veteran blinded soldier himself of the Great War, in the Report for the year ended March 31st, 1940, of St. Dunstan's, of which he is Chairman.

TRAGIC THOUGHT

It is a tragic thought, the Report adds, that the history of 1914-18 zones in order to hasten producmust be written again and newlyblinded men added to our ranks, but there is comfort in the knowledge that eye casualties of the present war have the experience and tradition of St. Dunstan's at their service.

These young men of the present war who have lost their sight are conquering blindness. This fact is eloquently demonstrated by a reference in the Re-

At the request of the Ministry of Health, St. Dunstan's is to take civilian eye cases that might arise out of air raids, or amongst the personnel of the Fishing Fleets through enemy action, for medica and surgical treatment, and provide them with that early rehabilitation and adjustment to blindness

FLYING ON-AFTER A YEAR OF WAR: CIVIL AIRCRAFT SERVE FIVE COUNTRIES

At the beginning of a second year of war, the route miles flown by British civil aircraft are 94-percent of what they were in peace time.

With each swiftly-changing phase of the conflict, the services of British Airways have had to be drastically reorganised. However, despite the heavy calls made on civil pilots, crews and surcraft by the military authorities, and despite the closing of the Mediterranean, over which the air highway of Empire used to run, new routes have been charted and new services introduced. This reorganisation is continuing, and further inter-Imperial links are planned. In September, 1940, British Airways is still the only civil aviation undertaking in the world to serve five continents.

This is the longest commercial Friair service in the world, and has | Sat. recently been doubled in frequency. It now runs twice weekly in each sun direction. effort.

COURAGE AND ENDURANCE Tribute must be paid to the civil pulots and crews who, are meeting the hazards of wartime flying with courage and endurance, While many of their fellows have gone to the R.A.F. to play their part in its glorious career of victory, as the mounting honours list of British Airways staff shows, these men have a less spectacular

Mr. Frank P. Fleth, auditor and inspector of the American Express Company, Shanghai, was the only witness called on Oct. 23 at the adjourned hearing of the case against P. J. MacKellar, formerly in charge of the travel department of the American Express Company, accused of embezzling funds belonging to the company.

Witness said he was auditor and inspector of the company for India and the Far East since February 1938 and was assistant manager in Paris in charge of the accounts department 1291 to 1927, and from March last began to audit the Shanghai accounts. This short, slim book of some 140 pages caused an uproar England. It indicted the former members of the Chamberlain Government, several of whom have remained in the Churchill.
